Kudos: Barbara Hughes and the art of ‘keeping busy’

Lewiston woman, 82, logs more than 1,500 volunteer hours in the past year. That is just one of her hobbies.

Volunteer Maine Commission elects new slate of officers

by BDN Community
July 7, 2021

Jenni Tilton-Flood, Luke Shorty and Pamela Proulx-Curry have been elected to serve as officers on the Volunteer Maine State Service Commission. They will serve as chair, chair-elect and vice chair, respectively. This proposed slate of officers passed with unanimous approval by Commissioners present at the June 18 meeting.

F. Celeste Branham, who has served as chair since Sept. 2018, will remain on the leadership team as the immediate past chair.

Tilton-Flood, of Clinton, is a dairy farmer and a farmer spokesperson for Cabot Creamery Cooperative. "While we follow a line of dedicated, dynamic officers our leadership team is looking forward to continuing the mission and committed to serving our communities and creating an even stronger Maine through volunteerism," said Tilton-Flood.
